Nigel Stefani

Nigel Stefani is a contemporary artist with a distinctive style that encompasses the use of layers to create his complex, detailed drawings and portraits. He interacts with individuals to illustrate their personal narratives through his art. His professional portfolio of work features detailed pencil portraits of subjects that have aroused his creativity.

The artistic process often starts with a conversation between himself and the subject which discusses the individuals' background. These dialogues allow the artist to connect solely with the person in front of him within an un-staged, organic environment, allowing the creation of a unique, intimate drawing.

Nigel does this by producing imagery from the answers given to him: be it a place, a feeling or a form of some kind. These make up the strata that embodies a physical representation of someone's personality: The inside out on the open.

He also applies this technique of displaying personality onto other things, including objects or his versions of 'still life'.

His works have included British actors Ben Whishaw and Sinead Matthews, model Andreja Pejic and fashion icon Virginia Bates, to name a few.

He has exhibited in the UK and Australia.
